

Welcome, Little One . . .

Coo over these birth
announcements
and brag books

The days as a new mother are sleep-deprived, family-saturated and perhaps a little intimidating. As the mother of a toddler, I remember it all too well. And I remember thinking I wanted to do more than send a mass e-mail heralding little Ruby's arrival. But how would I find the time, let alone the energy?

Good news! With these cute ideas and easy-to-use products, you can send out announcements and brag books that are as sweet as the newborn baby.

by Heather Jones

Don't fret about what to write—simply emphasize the baby's name and include a succinct list of stats.

Boost visual interest by overlapping elements
and adding brads.

These tablets by Déjà Views coordinate perfectly—and they're cute!

Kainoa by Jamie Waters.
Supplies Patterned papers and die cuts: Déjà Views by The C-Thru Ruler Co.; Rub-ons and brads: Autumn Leaves.

2 Winners!

Win a Pregnancy Album!

Still waiting for the little one to arrive? Enter our "Small Details" sweepstakes and win a $75 pregnancy album from Tummy Talk. With dedicated journaling slots, pockets for cards and other memorabilia, space for photos and a spot to tuck letters to baby, this album is adorable and all-in-one!

To read the rules and enter, visit www.creatingkeepsakes.com/contests today. Hurry—sweepstakes ends April 30, 2007.